Selma Doctors Academy at Selma High receives $50,000 grant

BY BRIANNA VACCARI
The Fresno Bee November 19, 2013

The Selma Doctors Academy at Selma High School received a $50,000 grant for the second time from the Selma Healthcare District.

The grant will support tutoring services for subjects like math, science and English.

The Doctors Academy was established by the University of California at San Francisco, Fresno Latino Center to encourage disadvantaged students to aim for careers in health and medicine. The academy provides students with a rigorous academic program that will make them competitive applicants for four-year universities. The program includes research experiences, clinical settings, service learning and exposure to universities and colleges.

The Selma Healthcare District has supported the Doctors Academy in the past, as well as teen pregnancy education programs, diabetes education and lactation education.
